A discussion was brought up on the subject that Wisconsin Emergency Management is working with FEMA to compile a list for an Inspector pool to be used in case of emergency situations. A round table session was held. Don Rehmus of the Wisconsin Department of Commerce Plumbing Inspection reported that a hearing is being scheduled to change the approval status of air admittance valves to an "experimental" status. There is also a move to ban their use in hospitals. This has been started due to a current failure rate of 17-18% of these valves. A letter from the State will follow if these changes take place.
